"Winning - much less being nominated in so many categories - was a tremendous surprise and an incredible honor. This is especially true when LONG PIG was nominated for Best Feature Film. As a horror film, being given mainstream attention is always a great thing," said Carlo Rodriguez, writer and director of LONG PIG. "I feel particularly happy for all the people who put in so much work to make the film. They really deserve this win."

About Long Pig

LONG PIG is an epic and brutally disturbing urban legend. The soldiers of Hell hunt the weak, the corrupt, and those whose souls have been lost to desire and temptation. They show no mercy. They strip away every ounce of dignity. They rip apart all shreds of humanity - all before feeding the appetites of the men and women of power who are cannibalizing our planet.

This underground film was produced by political and environmental activist Texas businessman, George H. Russell. The production of this film was very much a family affair as George Russell's 97-year-old father, lifetime educator Dr. Kenneth L. Russell, makes his acting debut with this project. Mr. Russell presents an allegory for the social, political, and economic turmoil that this country is currently experiencing in the form of the story of LONG PIG, and the movie - while certainly timely in its content - is timeless as its themes relate directly to the darker parts of Human Nature.
